The Earth Said to Be Accompanied

by Two Satellites,

One of Which is Invisible-Reasons for the Belief-Evidence that the Moon Has an Atmosphere-Storms. BELLIA OF CALDE

New York, June 14.—The Tribune to-day prints the following from Wiggins: For many years it has been my belief that our planet is accompanied by two satellites, a visible and a dark one, the distance of the latter from the earth being probably double that of the former. The librations of the moon, the frregularity of her motions in her orbit and the fact that her perigee seldom takes place immediately on the orbit of our earth in advance of the earth's course, are strong evidences of the disturbing influence of a sister satellite. The variation in the time and height of the tides, occasional tides of excessive height without apparent cause, and the frequent occurrence of double tides, can not be ex-plained on the hypothesis that the earth is attended by only one secondary. Earth-quakes which are caused by unusual planetary attraction frequently occur when it would appear that the force which produced them had not yet reached its climax, and could not till after the moon's conjunction with the sun. The retwo days before the moon was in conjunction with the solar orb, and before she was in perigee, showing that her attractive power must have joined with another and very nearly equal force be-fore she reached the line of her solar conjunction. This earthquake, I predicted, would return with increased volume on May 20. It did so, causing the destruction of many villages and the death of hun-dreds of people. On the same day oc-curred the disastrous cyclone in British Burman. The earthquake, however, did not appear in England, and I am convinced it was moved eastward by the influence of this dark planet. The recent cold wave which passed over America must have been due to this source, and as nearly the same conditions will exist on the 26th and 27th of the present month the same cold wave would appear were it not for the changed positions of this dark horse of the heavens.

All great storms should occur after certain planetary conjunctions, whereas they frequently precede them, and it is for this reason that many meteorologists-among them Sir William Thompson-have denied that the moon has any influence whatever in producing storms on the surface of our globe. Years before I published produc tions I found that some of my storms would be delayed for several days, others would appear ahead of time, and frequently the heaviest would be annihilated altogether. There were no known planets which could possibly produce this effect, and I was at length forced to the conclusion, as I have said, that our earth is accompanied by a dark satellite. It would which frequent mention is made in history -so-called because they could not be traced to an ordinary solar eclipse-were of such a character as to justify the belief that they were caused by an opaque body intervening between our globe and the sun, for the suddenness and brevity of the darkness could not be interpreted as due to smoke or vapor in the earth's atmosphere. I am confident that the moon and this dark satellite were in conjunction with the sun, or nearly so on June 9, 1883, which produced the eruption of the great Java volcano, and caused the storm which I predicted would be and the London Times says it was the greatest storm of the present century. On March 26, 1884, this planet was somewhere in the neighborhood of her inferior or superior conjunction, and heightened the storm on the 28th of that month. Strange to add, I have just received letters from Michigan saying that a solar eclipse was visible in that State on May 16,1884, at 7 o'clock in the evening, when fully one-third of the solar disc was in darkness. As the moon at that moment was twelve degrees south of the celestial equator, and the sun was as many degrees north of it, this phenomenon could not have been caused by our visible satellite. Doubtless it was the passing of this dark planet across the sun's disc.

i have little sympathy with Prof. Proctor and others, who, with the prejudice of the old schoolmen, persist in declaring that our moon is a dead planet, and is not possessed of an atmosphere. Any one who will take the trouble to look when she is in quadrature will see with the naked eye on a clear night the whole luminous annullus or ring of light that surrounds her orb, which is a proof positive and comcomplete that she is enveloped in an atmosphere similar to our own. The same arguments were used long ago by Dr. Dick and others to prove that Jupiter and other primaries are destitute of an atmosphere, while the very fact that they are visible is evidence that they are endowed with atmosphere like that of our own globe, for surely no one is now antiquated enough to believe that light exists throughout space but only in the atmosphere of the planets. The non-existence of a second satellite to the earth is therefore not proved by reason of its invisibility. Its position can only be ascertained by noticing the sudden quenching of stars, and I trust that astronomers both in America and Europe will aid in obtaining the magnitude and motions of this lonely wanderer in the siderial heavens,

MERRICK'S TESTIMONY

Before the Springer Committee Rather Severe on Bliss,

WASHINGTON, June 14. - Ex-Secutor George Spencer yesterday addressed a let-ter to Chairman Springer denying in toto the statement in Dorsey's letter to the effect that he (Spencer) demanded that $12,-000 be paid to Elkins in consideration of immunity from Star Route prosecutions, and offering to appear before the committee at its convenience. Bliss, Ker and Mer-rick, present at the Springer Committee, and S.ewart, of Vermont, having returned, Merrick, of the counsel in the Star Route trial, was examined. Merrick was com-missioned assistant attorney March 21, 1882, having been previously in consulta-tion with counsel for a week or two. No special contract was made as to the amount which was to be paid to him, that being left to the Attorney General to be settled after the suits had ended. After he had received $37,000 or $38,000 for services rendered, and considered the account with the Government settled, some $3,500, which was due him had lapsed through his neglect to present the bill before the close of the last fiscal year. For this amount he made no claim. Immediately after being commissioned, Bliss called and had a consultation with the witness. Dorsey, Brady and others' indict-ments were put in his hands. After an examination of the cases he could not determine upon which he could secure a conviction. On an examination of the indictments first drawn, the witnesses found that the indictments of Rerdell, Sanderson and Vaile were defective and informed Bliss that new indictments must be found. After consultation a new indictment was found, and in the meantime the statute of limitations had run out. Sanderson's indictment was dropped out because his connection with the combination was slight. The witness did not recollect hearing of his being connected with any other combination; knew nothing about the evidence in other cases, but was familiar with Brady's and Dorsey's case, and did not think there was a stronger case anywhere. The evidence in this case is all that any reasonable man would require to convict.

THEY ALL WANT HIM.

Why Republicans, Democrats and Negroes Will Support Butler.

NEW YORK, June 14.-Mr. J. W. Seymour, of this city, having written to General Butler, advising him to run for the Presidency with or without a nomination, has received the following reply:

"My DEAR SIR: I have received your very kind note. Thanking you for your expressions of regard, I take leave to say that there is one view in which I think my possible election to the Presidency, of which you speak, might be at lest of service to the country. Although running upon the Democratic ticket, or in any event as a Democrat with my views, which I believe to be Democratic upon many subjects, I should receive, I fain would be-lieve, a very large colored vote at the South. The colored men know me. I have commanded many, many thousands of them as soldiers. So that my election as a Denocrat would wipe out the color line at the South by bringing the two races together under one political head, and that seems to me to be a very great desideratum, and would be of the gree service to the country, as it might be the last which I could render. "The Democratic party of the South would be obliged to acknowledge me as a Democrat, the colored men would know me as a friend, and the relations are not in-compatible, so that I can't see why even as firm a Republican as yourself might not feel justified, as you say you would do, in voting for me.

"Renewing my thanks, I am, very truly, "Your friend and servant, "BENJAMIN F. BUTLER."

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

WASHINGTON, June 14.-In the House the Consular and Diplomatic and the District of Columbia Appropriation Bills were reported from the Committee on Appropriation, the Senate amendments of each being non-concurred in. The Conference Committee requested and agreed to vote by unanimous consent. Mr. Pryor (Ala.) resumed his remarks on the Presidential Succession Bill at the point where he was interrupted by the adjournment yesterday.

Mr. McMillan gave notice at the conclusion of Pryor's remarks that he would move to go to the private calendar. Mr. Randall said that he would move to take up the Deficiency Appropriation Bill and Townsend (ills.) would present the conference report on the Postal Appropria-

Mr. Pryor's argument was in support of the theory of the House bill that the Senate and House did not meet as legislative bodies, or in an official capacity as such bodies, but as a conveniently designated board for the sole and special purpose of counting the electoral votes, and that as such the powers of each member of this board are co-equal.

The Senate has rejected the international depyright treaty.

A Desertion of Blaine Denied. TROY, N. Y., June 14.—The Standard has received the following:

" / have noticed in the papers that the order of the American Orangemen has taken action to vote against Blaine. I take this opportunity to state that, individually, Orangemen are, I might say, proud to belong to the Republican party, but as a society we don't recognize political parties. As we are a strictly religious organization, to my knowledge no action has been taken for the support or non-support of Blaine." [Signed.]

Steals $7,000 from Her Husband and Elopes with a Married Man.

Ber Paramour Whips Her Son, Wha in Turn Shoots Him Down-Her Husband Dying from the Effects of the Shock.

PINE VALLEY, Pa., June 14.—A long standing scandal has just had a startling climax involving the probable deaths of two persons and the wrecking of two hitherto peaceful and happy homes. The princi-pals in the unfortunate affair were Jaber Grant, a farmer living in this village and Mrs. Joshua Willig, wife of a farmer of large wealth, residing a few miles from Pine Valley. Mrs. Willig is a young and decidedly handsome woman between thirty and forty years of age and the mother of four children. Some time ago an intimacy sprang up between Mrs. Willig and Grant, and recently their names were associated in a notorious manner, and the tongue of scandal was kept busy discussing the nu-merous escapades of the guilty pair. Grant availed nimself of the absence of

Mr. Willig to visit his wife, and although their intercourse was generally talked of as scandalous, Mr. Willig appeared blind to the real condition of affairs, and paid no attention to the go-sip about his wife. On Wednesday morning he left his home, in tending to be absent a couple of days, and on the evening of his departure Grant went to Mrs. Willig's and stayed over night, in spite of the opposition of her son, Henry, who raised a fearful row, and cen-sured his mother for allowing Grant to sleep in the house. His efforts were use-less, and he left the house enraged and stopped over night with a friend near by. In the morning when he went home his mother was missing. He waited until noon, but she failed to appear. He then went to his father's room and found the door locked, which was unusual. He succeeded in effecting an entrance, and found that a small iron safe in which his father had kept all his valuables had been burst open and the contents rifled. He knew that his father always kept a large sum of money in the house. Contrary to expectation his father returned sooner han expected. The son explained the situation and said that his mother had eloped with Grant. Mr. Willig was overcome by grief and had to be put to bed. He was taken with a violent fit of coughing and soon afterward blood began to flow from his mouth. A physician was summoned who said that the shock had been to much for him. In despair the son mounted a horse and started in pursuit of his recreant mother. Grant and his paramour had been seen driving southward in an open carriage. Willig came upon the pair at Gor-man's tavern, a few miles from here. He asked his mother to come home with him and give him the money she had stolen. She laughed and looked at Grant who also laughed and told the young man that he ought to be ashamed to insuit his own mother. The enraged youth then sprang Grant grappled with him and easily threw him to the door. He beat and kicked the boy about the head and face until Mrs. Willig said: "That will do, Jabez." As soon as he was released, Willig sprang back a few paces, drew a revolver and fired three shots at Grant, each of which took effect in his body. A physician was sent for and pronounced Grant's injuries fatal. Willig surrendered himself and was placed under $3,000 bail to await the result of Grant's injuries.

Grant said that he had been criminally intimate with Mrs. Willig for over two years, that she had proposed to him to elope, and that she had the stolen money and papers in her possession. He is a hard, brutal man, and his wife has received many beatings at his hands for venturing to remonstrate against his intimacy with Mrs. Willig. His death was reported this afternoon. During the excitement that followed the shooting Mrs. Willig escaped, and no trace of her could be found. Besides the $7,000, she had in her possession all the title deeds to her husband's property. It is supposed she fled to Baltimore, and a telegram has been sent to the marshal of police in that city to intercept her. Mr. Willig is sinking, and can only survive a few hours. The sympathy of the community is with young Willig.

THE PENSION BILL.

A Committee to be Appointed to Have General Charge of It.

WASHINGTON, June 14 .- Owing to the probability of a protracted debate on the Mexican Pension Bill, a caucus of the Republican Senators was held this morning, and after a long discussion it was decided to appoint a committee on amendments. It is understood that this committee is to supervise and have general charge of any amendments which members of the majoriy desire to offer. Considerable anxiety exists respecting the debate which is likely to arise on the bill, and unless a definite understanding is reached by the majority, the debate may continue some days. Thus far the Denio crats have refrained from a discussion of the amendments offered, but it is expected they will be heard from before the debate
